MEMORANDUM

This Bill makes additional provisions with regard to the Zimbabwe Media Commission which is established by section 248 of the Constitution and whose functions are detailed in section 249 of the Constitution with the objective to protect the rights to the freedom of expression and the freedom of the media granted under section 61 of the Constitution. The Bill will also extensively amend the Access to Information and Protection of Privacy Act [Chapter 10:27] by repealing all provisions relating to the regulation and control of the media. The Bill must be read with and subject to various provisions of the Constitution such as section Part 1 of Chapter 12 relating to the nature of independent commissions supporting democracy of which the Zimbabwe Media Commission is one; Part 1 of Chapter 18 with respect to general and supplementary provisions relating to all constitutional commissions (covering the juristic status of Commissions, terms of office of members, funding of Commissions, etc); section 17 relating to gender balance. These aspects have not been restated in this Bill.

Essentially, the Bill elaborates on the functioning of the Media Commission. For ease of reference, the relevant provisions of Chapter 12 of the Constitution relating to the establishment and functions of the Commission are set out in extenso as a preamble to the Bill. So too is 61 which sets out the right to freedom of expression and freedom of the media.

In more detail, the Bill provides as follows:

Part 1: Preliminary

This Part deals with preliminary matters.

Clause 1 sets out the short title of the Bill as the Zimbabwean Media Commission Bill, 2018.

Clause 2 defines some of the terms used in the Bill and these are self-explanatory. Of significance is the definition of “person” which points to the fact that government and governmental institutions are bound by this Bill.

Part II: Zimbabwe Media Commission and Staff

Clause 3 provides that only the chairperson shall be a fulltime member of the Commission. Clause 4 provides additional functions of the Commission and these relate to ensuring compliance with any laws governing media practitioners and media services and any international instruments to which Zimbabwe is a party. Clause 8 of the Bill provides for the investigation by the Commission of any violation which falls to be investigated under this act. The investigation may follow a complaint made to the Commission or may be instigated by the Commission itself if it thinks that a violation has or is likely to occur. A complaint must be submitted to the Commission within 3 years of the occurrence of the action complained of. The Bill shall however not apply to actions which took place prior to its promulgation. Investigations will not extend to matters which may be before the courts or before any other independent Commissions.

Clause 9 provides for the procedure for the submission of complaints and the obligations of the Commission where it declines to investigate or continue an matter.

Clause 10 provides for the conduct of investigations or hearings and for that purpose, some provisions of the Commissions of Inquiry Act [Chapter 10:07] will apply with respect to the conduct of any investigations, inquiries or hearings of the Commission. If the circumstances so require and subject to the rights of the persons concerned, hearings or inquiries may be held in camera. Information disclosed in camera may not be disclosed to the public without the authority of the Commission or be used for the benefit of any member or staff of the Commission.

Under clause 11, the Commission may grant any person who has an interest in a matter before it an opportunity to make representations at the proceedings or to have access to or to comment on any representations made at any of its proceedings. Clause 13 provides for the enforcement of orders of the Commission by way of registration of such orders with the High Court following a procedure specified in Part II of the Civil Matters (Mutual Assistance) Act [Chapter 8:02]. If an order is registered, it is enforceable as any judgment of the High Court.

Under clause 14, it is an offence to contravene or fail to comply with an order of the Commission.
Clause 15 requires that any member of the Commission who may have a conflict of interest with respect to any matter before the Commission not to participate in any proceedings relating to that matter and it is an offence on the part of any member who contravenes this clause.
